fight, which has been smouldering since Mr. Harriman got the upper hand in November, 1996, and put his own man in as president of the Illinois Central in place of Mr. Fish, blazed up in fine style yesterday. It promises to be almost as prominently before the public eye from now on until the meeting of the stockholders of the Illinois Central on October 16 as it was in the period between the insurance investigation which broke up the close friendship formerly existing between the two men and the directors' meeting at which Mr. Fish was latter. deposed.

Yesterday Mr. Fish stirred up things in a way that ended in his calling Mr. Harriman a liar. Mr. Fish first sent out a statement about the Illinois Central in which he called attention to the smallness of Mr. Harriman's stock holdings in comparison with his own, and said that while he did not intend to enter into an active campaign for reelection to the presidency he had received from stockholders a large number of unsolicited proxies and would be on hand at the meeting to vote them in addition to his ewn stock and the stock of his close associates in the company.

When Mr. Harriman was leaving the office of the Union Pacific Railroad Company yesterday afternoon he had not yet seen the statement

As he approached the reporters who were waiting for him at the door he shook his head and said jocularly, presumably in reference to some of the interviews pub-

shed lately and credited to him: "I am not going to say any foolish things you, Mr. Harriman?" "Never mind what I mean. I own more shares than Mr. Fish, several times over, and he knows it, too.

He says you own only 130 shares.

"He has said a lot of things lately that weren't-well, that weren't just right." been talking on the elevator and in the street, disappeared down the subway.

At Mr. Fish's office in the National Park Bank Building there were a hundred or so copies of the evening papers on a desk and his secretary was busy cutting the statement out of them preparatory to sending it to stockholders of the company who had written to Mr. Fish. It was in answer to letters enclosing proxies and asking about his attitude on the Illinois Central matter that Mr. Fish made lish which started the controversy: Within the last few days quite a number f stockholders of the Illinois Central Railroad ompany have sent me their proxies to vote the next annual meeting, to be held in Chicago on Wednesday, October 16. Others have written to me on the subject. Being unable to reply promptly to each, I take this epportunity to say what my position is: I the company held shares therein as follows

The directors whose terms expire this autumn are Mr. Astor, Mr. Harriman and myself, whose successors will be elected for terms of four years. A fourth director will have to be elected by the stockholders for a term of one year in the place of John C. Welling, deceased.

I long since reached the conclusion that although I owe a great deal to the stockholders for the trust which they had for me than twenty years imposed in me as the holder of their proxies, they could not ask me offer myself as a candidate for reelection at this time. Nor am I disposed to make any effort to procure proxies. In view, however of the letters and proxies which have already eached me, entirely without solicitation on my part, I do feel bound, if possible stockholders' meeting, and shall, after hearing what may be brought out thereat, own shares and such proxies as may be confided to me, in the best interest of the owners of the whole capital stock.

shall also, in all probability, explain, as arly as I can, to the stockholders what has been going on in the conduct of the company's business during the last twelve months, and show them to what extent their card of directors is and bas been controlled by these of its number who are also directors of the Union Pacific Railway Company. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. PARIS, Aug. 1 .- After the close of the recent naval manguyres reports were current of shells bursting prematurely. These reports are now confirmed by Admiral Fouchard, who in an interview in the Matin says that the shooting exercises gave results that candidly were bad. The premature bursting of shells was not confined to the smaller guns.

The battleship Suffern had six premature explosions out of twelve shells fired, the République one and the Carnot three out of five. The Jauréguiberry and others of the fleet had experiences similar to that of the Carnot, while the St. Louis had eleven premature explosions out of twelve, some of the shells bursting within fifty yards of the

she Had Been Missing From Her Home Around the Corner for a Week -Woman Who Had Been Made to Leave the Girt's Home and Two Itahans Arrested.

Mrs. Filomena Douria lit her way yesterday morning down the steep cellar steps of her tenement lodgings at 203 First avenue to get wood for her fire. As she groped at the foot of the stairs she stumbled against a box. Her candle snuffed out when she fell and her hands, thrown out to support her, fell on a head silky with curls.

The woman scrambled up the stairs shricking out into the huddle of pushcarts on the curb. Her Sicilian voice shrilled over the rattle of a street piano:

"A dead child in the cellar! Mother of God, a murdered child in my cellar!"

Within five minutes her words had been carried around the corner to the tenement at 349 East Thirteenth street, where Karl Tietschler, a German, and his family live.

"Come, maybe we have found your little Katie, who has been lost this whole week," cried the eager bearers of news. "If we have, then she is dead-murdered," they added.

Meanwhile a policeman had crushed his way through the crowd that blocked the sidewalk in front of the First avenue tenement. Some one brought a lentern and he went down the stairs into the cellar. The stairs follow the south wall, which is dank and drips with moisture. They give into an underground room about ten feet long and six in width, so shut off from light and the air that the mould and the cobwebs have splotched the walls white.

The policeman raised his lantern and say in the middle of the cellar about two feet from the foot of the stairs the tumbled body of a girl, lying face downward over long vegetable crate. A red frock which was meant to cover the girl's knees was about her neck. The childishly rounded body of the eightrear-old girl had been haggled and mauled. There were marks where nails had torn and blotches where a fist or a stone had been pounded upon the flesh. The back of the head was crushed. A yellow hair ribbon had been tied about the throat, but t was not tight

Even before the policeman had time to notify the Fifth street station a man who rested a shortened foot on the step of a cane fought his way through the crowd at the mouth of the cellar and cried out that he was John Bauer, uncle of Katie Tietschler come to see if the murdered girl was Katie. the red dress by the light of the policeman's lantern "It is Katie," he said. When I reported the disappearance of Katie to the police at the Fifth street station and we went up to see her.

She denied all knowledge of the girl. Yesterday the detectives looked for the lessner woman. They found that her rooms were on the first floor front in the same tenement in which Katie Tietschler's body had been found. The woman had left about 9 o'clock in the morning, other tenants said The detectives searched her effects and found a bankbook showing tha: Louise Epstein had a deposit in the Marcus Savings Bank, at 225 East Fourteenth street. Investigation brought out the fact that Annie Messner is Louise

Coupling the coincidence of the proximity of Annie Messner's room to where the girl's body was found with the gossip of the neighborhood that the woman had been intimat: with two Italian cobblers whose shop is at 349 East Thirteenth street, a few doors from the tenement where the Tietschlers live, the detectives went to the cobblers' shop

Gaetano Ripollone, one of the cobblers, had been sought by Katie's uncle immediately after her disappearance, but he had gone to Bristol, Conn., on that day and did not return until Saturday last questioned by the police yesterday he admitted that the Messner woman had come into his shop several times since she had been ejected from the Tietschler flat. BLAMES PETERS AND MCREA. Coroner's Jury Wants L. J. Raitroad Officials

Held for Crossing Tragedy.

A Coroner's jury of Queens county, sitting in Jamaica yesterday, placed the responsibility for the deaths of Dr. Edward J. Gallagher and his flancée, Miss Helen Madigan, who were killed on July 21 while crossing the Long Island Railroad tracks near Jamaica in an automobile, on President Ralph Peters and General Superintendent James A McCrea of the Long sland Railroad

The jury found that there was no bell on the crossing, as there is on most of the other crossings on the line, and that the lookout-for-the-cars sign post is hidden by rees. The jury's verdict was as follows:

We find that Dr. Edward J. Gallagher died from injuries, bruises of head and body and burns upon body, caused by being struck by a rain of the Long Island Railroad at the Locust avenue crossing, St. Albans, and caused President Ralph Peters and General Superin endent James A. McCrea for not safeguarding the crossing, and we recommend that they be seld to await action of the Grand Jury. exonerate the engineer, S. O. Dimmick, from

A similar finding was made in the case of Miss Madigan.

William B. Clark, a retired merchant of Ozone Park, testified at the inquest, and said that he crossed the tracks in an automobile with his wife and son just a few econds before Dr. Gallagher tried to cross Mr. Clark said he saw the train coming and that his wife, realizing that Dr. Gal lagher could hardly get across in safety turned to signal the doctor to stop. She turned in time to see the automobile hurled into the air. He said that Dr. Gallagher evidently tried to stop, as he slowed down just before he reached the track.

Coroner Ambier last evening drew warants for the arrest of Mr. Peters and Mr. McCrea. The warrants were given to the police, but the Coroner said it would be all right if they were served to-day.

BRYAN ON R. R. OWNERSHIP. Says It Isn't an Issue for 1908, but That Regulation Is.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 1 .- Replying to the charges of critics that he has backed down on Government ownership of railroads, Mr. Bryan's Commoner says:

"In spite of his very plain language certain papers have insisted upon misrepreenting his position and have persistently lodged the issue of regulation. Now that Mr. Bryan has pointed out that there is no disposition on the part of those who believe in Government ownership to make it an issue in 1908, and that he does not believe it wise to inject the question into the campaign, these papers insist that it is and must be an issue anyhow. But they will not be permitted to longer avoid the discussion of plans for effective regulation.

"Do these editors believe in regulation or do they propose to leave the public help-

"Here are three vital propositions connected with a present issue, namely, effective regulation:

"First, the ascertaining of the value of the railroads. "Second, the preventing of overcapital-

"Third, the reduction of rates to a point where they will yield only a reasonable return upon the real value of the roads."

MAGILL AND WIFE INDICTED. pecial Grand Jury Returns True Bills

GLINTON, Ill., Aug. 1 .- True bills charging the murder of Magill's first wife were voted this afternoon by a special Grand July of De Witt county against Fred H. BIG GRIST FOR NIGHT COURT

SOME 200 PRISONERS BROUGHT IN BY MIDNIGHT.

Job a Heavy One for One Judge and More Magistrates May Sit at Night-Few Women Brought In-Pottee Say Too Many Men Have to Go Off Night Patrol.

The night police court started at Jefferson Market at 9 o'clock last night with a rush. Up to midnight nearly 200 prisoners had been brought to the court from all over Manhattan and The Bronx and about twothirds of the cases had been passed upon. For an hour before court opened the sidewalks about the building were blocked. When the doors were opened the police on guard were nearly rushed off their feet and the confusion in the early proceedings was Nearly every Magistrate in town was present. Three chief clerks came down to help out as assistant clerks. Probation officers, interpreters and stenographers flocked to the place. The police brought the prisoners in patrol wagons, on elevated trains and in street cars. The pens were soon jammed. It seemed, the police said, as if there would be no business for the police courts to-day because all the offenders in town were on hand.

Judge Whitman of the Court of General Sessions opened the court formally and some photographing followed.

"Call the first case," said Judge Whitman at 9:08 o'clock. It was that of two pedlers, Joseph Palay and Henry Jalowzen, who had no license. Patrolman Fitzgerald of the Sixteenth precinct told about arresting them, and they were fined $2 each.

Then the cases poured in. They were of the usual police court variety, violation of driving rules, assault, larceny—the whole string. Mary Mitchell, an old woman, came up for intoxication. She was held until morning. A robbery of brushes from a Fulton street shop went over. Minnie Cassel charged John Moore with beating her at 112 West 124th street. He was sent to the workhouse direct.

Josephine Palmer of 114 West Fortyninth street was the first woman arraigned. She was arrested on a bench warrant for keeping a disorderly house. Magistrate Finn discharged her last week on the same charge and then the police got the warrant She gave $300 bail

A lawyer named Allan Lee Schmidt made disturbance. Judge Whitman ordered him before the bar and urged him to go home. He refused and the Judge had him put out of court. Later he came back and was fined $5.

Then came Gen. William S. C. Wiley of Catskill, ex-State Senator, arrest ed speeding his automobile in St. Nicholas venue between 151st and 152d streets. He had put up a $600 ring as security for his appearance in court. Judge Whitman paroled him on his own recognizance to appear to-day in the Harlem court.

Soon two negro women were up. Clara Thite and Sadie Fleming The Fleming woman figured in the case of the Rev. Mr. Mears. They got the 'workhouse direct" sentence. A third woman. Lynette Goodlander, wanted to pay a fine so that her parents would not know about her case. She was put in the charge of Miss Smith, the probation officer. There were not many cases of

One of the Tenderloin professional bonds men appeared, whispered with a lawyer and hurried out of court. Those who were near him say he said things about "that man Whitman" that wouldn't do for print, At 11 o'clock there were ninety prisoner waiting to be arraigned. Three patrol vagons filled with more prisoners were drawn up on the Tenth street side of the court. Judge Whitman left the bench at 10:20 o'clock, giving way to Magistrate House. Fifteen minutes later Magistrate Barlow took the bench. He called upon

Magistrate Wahle to help him out. Judge Whitman and Police Commissione Bingham agreed that no automobile cases or felonies should be brought to the court hereafter. Judge Whitman said that under the code all cases must be taken before a Magistrate without "unnecessary delay" and that the police might detain a prisoner for a few hours if necessary. The other Magistrates seemed to agree and the classiication of the cases to be heard will be brought up later. Some of the police precincts found fault because so many men were taken off post to arraign the prisoners and said that the reserves had to go out on night patrol A police sergeant was stationed inside the court to take the time every policeman was detained. Gen. Bingham declined to discuss the effect on the night patrol. Judge Whitman declared the court a great success." All the other Magistrates agreed with him Magistrate Walsh said it looked as if he would not have anything to do to-day in Jefferson Market. Magis trate Wahle said that if the court proved oo heavy for one Magistrate to attend to the board would have to open other night courts, and that no law was needed for that purpose. A little more work from each of the Magistrates, he said, would be all

Jackson, Miss, Aug. 1.-John Sharp Williams was nominated to-day for United States Senator to succeed Senator H. D. Money. The returns from to-day's Democratic primary are slow in coming in on account of the lengthy ballot and the slow count, but with the returns now in sight Williams has defeated Vardaman by a plurality estimated at 15,000.

There has been no intercourse between them since the trial, and it is quite evident that some feeling exists. What it is all about no one knows.

They quarrelled in the early days of the trial, but it was thought that had been settled. Haywood was not present in court when Moyer got bail, and it is said Moyer never stopped shaving when he was told Haywood had been acquitted. FRANCE AND SPAIN SENDING TO CASABLANCA.

Death of Spanish Subjects Causes Concerted Action With France-Alarmist Rumors of a General Massacre of the Christians Follow-Grave Peril in Port.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN MADEL', Aug. 1 .- The cruiser Infanta sabel has been ordered to join the French cruiser Galilee at Casablanca. The Government has sent a strong note to Mohammedel-Torres asking that immediate attention be paid to it. The newspaper El Liberal, commenting on the Casablanca affair. says that instead of restoring order by force of arms it would be better to denounce the Algeciras convention and call another conference to revise the work of the last

As one and perhaps two Spaniar is were murdered at Casablanca Spain bas decided to cooperate with France in exacting satisfaction. This is in accordance with the agreement covering such cases. PARIS, Aug. 1.-The warship Conde Duchavla has been ordered to sail from Toulon this evening and to join the Galilee at Casablanca as soon as possible. The Desaix, Cassini and La Hire have been ordered to be in readiness to sail if they are needed.

BERIAN, Aug. 1.-The newspapers are chary of expressing an opinion on the Casablanca affair for reasons that are obviou: enough to those who recall the recent past The Lokalanseiger, however, says that Oermany will not think for a moment of interfering in any steps that France may take to avenge the killing of her citizens She may e assured of Germany's sympathy

The Vossische Zeitung recognizes that France is fully justified in avenging her national honor and exacting satisfaction, but it adds: "We cannot help realizing the danger that she may seek that revenge by means of new appropriations of territory n Morocco. She must remember that the road to revenge is beset with international perils, and choose her steps warily. London, Aug. 1 .- The Berlin correspondent of the Standard says that the German Government will raise no obstacle to France, Spain and Italy taking energetic ection in Morocco. On the contrary, she assures them of German sympathy Herr Langwerth, the German Charge d'Affaires at Tangier, has been instructed to inform the French Minister that Germany fully recognizes the necessity for the solidarity of all Europeans in Morocco in the present A despatch to the Central News from Tangier says that grave news was received there at noon to-day from Casa-blanca. When the message was despatched thousands of fanatical tribesmen and the Europeans remaining in the town were in erious danger, as the Moors were refusing o allow them to take refuge on board the foreign ships in the harbor. Another report says that the members of the French roadstead. TANGIER, Aug. 1 .- Dr. Merle, who ar rived here yesterday with news of the raid by Kabyle tribesmen upon the town of Casablanca and their massacre of five Frenchmen, two Italians, one Spaniard morning, however, several mounted tribesmen appeared and rode about the streets preaching a holy war and bidding all Mussulmans to leave the town, as all the tribes were coming to exterminate the Jews At 1 P. M. a locomotive, used in the harbor works, left the harbor for a quarry 1,000 yards away. After it had passed the bank Arabs broke up the track a short distance from the harbor. A European who came up was attacked and stoned. He tried to ee, but was knocked unconscious with blows and his body was hacked to pieces.

Another European, who happened to be passing, met the same fate. The perpetrators of these murders were inhabitants of Casablanca, led by the emissaries of the tribes. When the locomotive returned, the driver found passage blocked by obstacles on the track. A crowd surrounded him and he was killed and his body cut to pieces, his native assistant on the engine striking the first blow.

Being informed of these facts, the French Consul went to the Pasha and demanded the assistance of soldiers to recover the bodies. The Pasha replied that he had no cartridges; but when the Consul insisted he furnished an escort for Dr. Merle and a number of other Frenchmen who left the town.

At the sight of the bodies of six Europeans lying in a heap' the Frenchmen could not restrain their anger. Whereupon the Moorish soldiers who formed their scort threatened to shoot them. The Frenchmen fled, pursued by a crowd, and succeeded in escaping.

The Consul then assembled all the French residents at the consulate and begged Dr. Merle to go to Tangier and ask that the French cruiser Galilee be sent immediately. Accompanied by the Spanish Consul and some soldiers he boarded a German ship. which he found crowded with terrifled Jews. On their way to the vessel Dr. Merle and his escort were jeered at by the native women and children, but the French Consul returned to his residence unmo-
